Republican National Convention

AT CHICAGO, JUNE 3d, 1884

[illegible] Convention will meet at Chicago [illegible] Tuesday June 3d, 1884 at 12 o'clock noon for the nomination of candidates to be supported for President and Vice President of the United States.

The Republicans of the several States shall cast their votes with regard to [illegible] but efforts [illegible] are in favor of electing such candidates as will most effectively represent the principles and policy of the Republican party, including a home market for the products of our farms and workshops; a sound currency; the fullest and freest employment of labor and capital; the amplest protection to all classes of the people, securing to each the fruits of his own industry; the equal rights of all citizens at home and abroad; the suppression of polygamy; the purity of elections, and the integrity of the National Government by the supremacy of the law.

The basis of representation in the Republican National Convention shall be as follows: Each State shall be entitled to four delegates at large, and to two additional delegates for each Representative in Congress, and for each Representative at large to which it may be entitled in the Forty-eighth Congress, and for each Territory and the District of Columbia two delegates.

The delegates at large shall be chosen by popular vote in the States, and in such manner as the Republicans of each State may determine, and the delegates from Congressional Districts shall be chosen by the Republicans voting in such districts, but no person shall be entitled to a seat in the Convention as a delegate who is not at the time of the meeting of the Convention a citizen of the State or Territory from which he is chosen.

No State shall be entitled to more than two Vice-Presidents on the same ticket as President.

The Republicans of the several States and Territories, the District of Columbia, Indian Nations, and Alaska will cooperate in the Convention through the following Committees, namely: One member from each State and Territory to be appointed by the delegates thereof, and one member from the District of Columbia, Indian Nations, and Alaska to be appointed by the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, which Committee shall also issue the call for the Convention, and make all arrangements for the meeting.

The Committee on Credentials shall be appointed on the first day of the session of the Convention by the Chairman of the National Committee, and shall report before the permanent organization of the Convention.

The Committee on Permanent Organization shall be appointed by the Chairman of the National Committee, and shall report at the first session of the Convention.

The Committee on Rules, Order of Business and Platform shall be appointed by the Chairman of the National Committee, and shall report at the second session of the Convention.

The Committee on Resolutions shall be appointed by the Chairman of the National Committee, and shall report at the third session of the Convention.

The Committee on Permanent Organization, Rules, Order of Business and Platform, and Resolutions shall each consist of two members from each State, Territory, and the District of Columbia, Indian Nations, and Alaska.

[illegible] Democratic [illegible] the nomination of Governor [illegible]

The horticultural [illegible] defeated in the House by the [illegible] Morrison motion to strike out the enacting clause of the bill was carried by a vote of 119 to 104. It was a great victory in the House as the detailed account of the [illegible] telegraphed will show. It was a victory for the interest.

[illegible] all round of the soundness of the [illegible] Republican platform in declaring that the Government should not take stock in [illegible] enterprises.—Boston Herald. That was a mistake.—Boston Traveller. That was a mistake.—Boston Journal. Don't you believe it. If all your [illegible] were as sensible as the Republican platform, there would be more than [illegible] for the people, securing to each free and equal participation in the right of suffrage, an honest counting of ballots, effective [illegible] protection of the people against fraud and violence, the [illegible] of the ballot box, [illegible] a National policy to these objects, and [illegible] recommending in addition to these objects, and [illegible] from each State [illegible] delegates at large from each Congressional district, and two delegates and two alternates for each Representative at large to which the State may be entitled in the Forty-eighth Congress, to the Convention.

The [illegible] at large will be chosen by popular vote, on a general ticket, and [illegible] Each delegate and alternate will present to the Secretary of the Republican National Committee, at least [illegible] days before the meeting of the Convention, the credentials of his appointment.

The Republican Congressional Committee, the Republican State Committee of each State, and the Republican Territorial Committee of each Territory, will be entitled to one member on the Committee on Arrangements for the Convention.

The Republican Congressional Committee, the Republican State Committee of each State, and the Republican Territorial Committee of each Territory, will be entitled to one member on the Committee on Arrangements for the Convention.

The Republican Congressional Committee, the Republican State Committee of each State, and the Republican Territorial Committee of each Territory, will be entitled to one member on the Committee on Arrangements for the Convention.

New York Democrats don't [illegible] than Mr Tilden doubles the majority [illegible] of Governor [illegible]

White House Stables.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR'S HORSES AND CARRIAGES—THE CALICO PONY PRESENTED BY CHIEF SHARPNOSE.

Just south of the State department, on 17th street, are the White House stables. The building is a two-story press brick, forming three sides of a square. It is set back a little way from the street, and the table yard and driveway are paved with asphalt clear to the sidewalk. The building is reached through an iron gate from the street. A private telephone wire runs from the office of the President's secretary to the stables. There is nothing remarkable about these stables. In fact, there are scores of private stables in the West End far handsomer, more convenient, and withal. A deep cellar extends beneath the stable portion, and the moisture soaks through its walls is apt to make it unhealthy for the horses. The only interest attached to the stables arises from the simple fact that they are the President's stables.

The central part of the building, in which the horses are stabled has stood as now for many years, but the wings were extended a couple of years ago to make more carriage room, as President Arthur needs more than former Presidents. The north half of the stable proper is devoted to the President's private horses. There are three large box stalls on one side, and six stalls on the other. The President's riding horse is the occupant of one of the box stalls. He is a sorrel gelding, seven years old, and about sixteen hands high. There is nothing remarkable about this animal. He is simply a good-looking, easy riding horse. His principal traits being pace and gentle. The President frequently takes a ride of summer evenings. He is a fair rider, and is fond of exercise. He has four carriage horses, two in the box stalls and two in the stalls on the other side. They are all bays, about sixteen hands high. They are very stylish, and are groomed to perfection, and the pair hitched to suit one of the handsome carriages with silver mountings, make a very striking turnout. Occasionally they are driven four-in-hand. The two other stalls are occupied by Arthur's buggy team, and a Hambletonian riding and the other a Black Hawk mare. They are driven a great deal, either single or doubled by their owner when he is at home, but while he is at college they receive only the necessary exercise. Chester Arthur has very daring rides. He not only knows how to ride well but has plenty of nerve, and it takes a good horse to get the better of him.

In one of the remaining stalls stands the little Indian pony which the President brought back from his trip to the Yellowstone country last year. He has not yet got rid of his cabin, but is receiving a course of drilling at the hands of Albert on the White Lot drive. What by patience and careful training he becomes perfectly docile he will be driven by the President's daughter Nellie to a dog cart. He is a little thing, with arched mane and shaggy tail. His color is what is termed the west as "painted" or "calico," and but the children call "circus," irregularly marked with white and brown in about equal proportions.

He was presented to the President last summer by Sharpnose, an Arapahoe chief. The Presidential party held a big powwow with the Indians, last summer, at Fort Washakie, on the Shoshone agency. Bad presents were exchanged. Sharpnose the agency Indians by the Shoshone Indians there is a band of Arapahoes on it, and Sharpnose as their chief gave the pony to the President for his daughter. The pony was taken along with the company of soldiers as far as Cheyenne, and from there shipped to Washington, where he arrived early last fall.

The south side of the stable is devoted to the office horses, six in numbers. The pair of clipped sorrels usually driven in the secretary's carriage are very good workers.

"A great many people think," said Colonel Brooks, the executive clerk, "that the expenses of keeping the President's horses are borne by the government. Such is not the case. The government keeps up the office stable, of course, but all those horses in the north side are the President's own property, and their keeping is paid for by him. They are practically two distinct stables. When Albert needs feed he gets it from a private dealer, while the feed for the office horses comes from the quartermaster's department. This has always been so, and yet Mr. Hayes was criticised for taking his own private horses to Ohio with him."

General Grant had very fine horses when he was President, continued Colonel Brooks, "and it was very seldom that he was passed on the road. He was a splendid driver. President Hayes had only a brace—a pair of grays, and a pair of bays. President Garfield had very fine roadsters. He had one pair of bays and a gray and a black. The latter were used mostly for saddle horses, and the boys raised quite a great deal.

"The south wing of the stables is used by the President's carriages, and in the second story live the attendants and family. The President has three carriages, a landau, a victoria and a brougham. They are very handsomely finished. President Arthur's coat-of-arms is on the doors with the motto: 'Imperii obstaculo.' President Arthur's Brewster hunting buggy is on in the carriage house. The opposite wing contains the office and carriages—a coupe and a six-seated carriage.

Here the President's well-known driver has served in that capacity for Presidents Grant, Hayes and Garfield. He is a faithful servant and a thorough horseman. He is very fond of horses, but he dislikes reporters. If he thinks a question is asked for newspaper purposes, he shuts up like a clam. He never leaves the stables at night until he is certain that he will not be needed any more. In case an emergency should arise and his services required, the watchman always knows where to find him. He very dark, but a fine looking man, and his handsome livery looks well on the box. Beverly Lomax, a handsome mulatto house servant, acts as footman to the President.

Stories on the Road.
Commercial Travelers at a Wayside Inn—Something to Put in a Gripsack.
"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you all occupy. The experience of the world, your knowledge of business, the changing sights you see, and all that you know."
This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasant tourist, last August, and was addressed to a semicircle of commercial travelers seated on the porch of the Liddell Hotel, St. Lindsay, Mo.
"I can't responded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer isn't without his pleasures, but he runs into risks, too—risks outside the danger of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."
"What risks? for instance?"
"Risk for instance?" said Mr. W. T. Franklin, who was then traveling for an Eastern house, and had been to merchants in all parts of the country. "The risk—which, indeed, amounts almost to a certainty—of getting the dyspepsia from perpetual change of diet and waterand from having no fixed hours for eating and sleeping. I myself was an example. I say was, for I am all right now."
"Not a comment on your present appearance as a Chicago dry goods traveler, lighting the cigar thereat."
"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia pulled me under. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC. I tried it and it fixed me in a perfection. There's nothing on earth, to my opinion, equal to it as a corrector of dyspepsia."
Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of New York, the proprietors, have a letter from Mr. Peebles stating that PARKER'S TONIC is the best remedy for Malaria, Fevers, Heardburn, Headache, Coughs and Colds, and all chronic diseases of the Stomach and Kidneys. STATE OF MAINE.
COUNCIL CHAMBER,
Augusta, Mar. 6, 1884
The undersigned, Committee of the Executive Council, appointed in accordance with the following Resolve of the Legislature approved March 14, 1883, hereby "solicit proposals from cities, towns and individuals as an inducement to the location of a new insane hospital."
Whereas, The insane hospital is now full and overflowing with patients, and has been enlarged from time to time, so that it would not be necessary to establish another insane hospital; therefore,
Resolved, That the governor and council appoint a commission from their own number to solicit proposals from cities, towns and individuals, as an inducement to the location of said hospital, to procure plans of said hospital, and an estimate of the cost of the same; to consider the most economical method for the State to adopt in the construction, and any other matter legitimately connected therewith, and submit a report upon the whole matter to the next legislature during the first week of its session."
Such proposals" sealed, and with the nature of the contents endorsed on envelopes, will be received up to June 20th, 1884, by the Secretary of State, Augusta, Maine.

TESTIMONIALS AND MERIT.
Less than three months ago,
BELL'S SARSAPARILLA
was first brought to public notice. It has been advertised only in a limited manner, yet the sale in that time has reached to nearly 3,000 BOTTLES,
and is constantly increasing. This great demand has come for the following reasons: Those who have tried the medicine have not been disappointed; no other preparation ever offered here has been so publicly endorsed as a Blood and Liver medicine of real merit over their own signatures, by well-known citizens, as BELL'S SARSAPARILLA; the production of a remedy of the size and value of BELL'S SARSAPARILLA, at 50 cents per bottle, while all others are sold for $1.00, is a new idea; but it has proved a successful one. From every town where it has been introduced, comes the same response; "It is the best and most popular selling spring medicine we keep."
The following from WM. E. MANN & CO. is but a Sample of the Whole:
To A. M. Robinson, Jr.:—Our retail trade for Bell's Sarsaparilla exceeds any other patent medicine with the exception of Warner's Safe Cure, and our jobbing trade for it is very good indeed.

A WONDERFUL CURE.
BANGOR, April 28, '84.
For the past three years, Rheumatism and Neuralgia have affected both of my arms so that at times I could not dress myself or sleep at night from pain. I was recommended to take Bell's Sarsaparilla by one who had been helped by it. I have done so and am now well. My arms are perfectly free from pain and lameness, and I owe it all to this medicine.

EVERY FAMILY SHOULD USE
DAGGETT'S
PATENT BAKING PAN
Health, Luxury and Domestic Economy.
UNEQUALLED FOR BAKING BREAD, CAKE, PUDDINGS, POULTRY, MEATS, FISH, &c.
These pans are constructed, strictly on scientific principles, have been thoroughly tested by the best chemists and practical men and women in the country, and pronounced by them one of the most important discoveries of the nineteenth century. Any article of food cooked in these Pans will retain its natural flavor, nourishment, etc., better than any other means of cooking. This Pan will pay for itself many times over in increasing the amount of nutriment in each loaf baked in it at least ten per cent., while a much larger percentage is saved in baking meats, for which it is particularly adapted. In cooking in these Pans less heat is required, as the steam generated is not allowed to escape from an open pan, thus rendering the heat as well as the nutrition in foods—hence a saving of fuel.
In Roasting Meats, Turkeys, etc., in any stove or range, much attention need be given to basting and turning until at least one fourth of the weight and the richest flavor is lost by evaporation and running off in steam, but by using this Pan this loss is all avoided. Being confined in the Pan, the steam arising forces what you are roasting to absorbit back again and make it as basting, and in no doing makes it more juicy, rich and tender. As it is, it has thus far brought to light and fame the other trap. No attention is required after you put the Pan in the oven. So until it be left no longer than the usual time there need be no fear of its burning, as the steam shall within the Pan prevents burning.
